—Insp. Crosthwaite is in charge of the Edmonton detachment of the N. W. M. P., until the arrival of Insp. Belcher, who is expected on any train.

—Chas. Lighthall, trapper of Grand Prairie, came in for the fair Tuesday, coming down the Athabasca by way of Lesser Slave lake. He sold his fur at the lake, to Brodin & Cornwall.

The trophy consists of a silver water pitcher and goblet mounted on a stand of the same material. The pitcher is surmounted by the figure of a lacrosse player with stick in position for action. The trophy is well designed and skillfully ornamented, making an attractive and valuable prize.

—An epidemic of scarlet fever is reported from Stony Plain. Already three children are reported to have died in one week without any quarantine precautions having been taken, and the public attended the funeral and spread the disease. As a result it is now claimed that other families in the settlement have it. The presence of the complaint has been reported to the authorities by Dr. Schwartz and the settlers of the Plain are naturally exercised over the delay in quarantining or taking other steps to protect the community.

—Col. Dent visits Edmonton one week from to-day to purchase horses for the British army. The horses to be purchased are those of the following classes: Cobs 14.1 to 15 hands; Cavalry horses 15.1 to 15.2 1 hands. Artillery horses 15.1 to 15.2 1-2 hands. The age limits are usually from 6 to 8 years but no objection is expected to well developed 5-year-olds and good individuals up to ten years. The colors are bay, brown, black and chestnut. Exceptionally good iron greys may be bought. Mares and geldings only will be bought. Horses must be broken to ride, used to both and gentle to mount and dismount.

—Railway contractor Malcolm McCrimmon arrived on Wednesday's train to rush work on his railway extension contract here. He is to-day putting up camp along the right of way and will proceed to engage men as soon as he is in a position to know how many he will want. The right of way is now cut out some two miles from Strathcona. Mr. McCrimmon will push the work as rapidly as possible in order to, if possible, get the line completed by the time set by the contract, namely the 1st of September. The unfavorable weather of the last few days has somewhat delayed matters.

Business in Force Over Twelve Millions.

The Great West Life Assurance Company has, from its inception, pursued a most conservative course with regard to its Reserve, realizing the importance of fully safe-guarding the interests of its policy-holders and making provision that affords undoubted security for carrying out all contracts entered into, and until two years ago was the only Canadian Company adopting the stricter standard. That this course was wisely directed is evidenced by the fact that the Canadian Government has, since 1st January, 1900, required from all Companies a higher standard of Reserve, thus endorsing the sound policy of the Great-West Life.

In addition to creating an ample Reserve, there are two other factors of vital importance to the policy-holders, namely, the safe and the remunerative investment of the funds. That this Company can point to the fact that it does not carry one dollar's worth of property under foreclosed mortgages, is sufficient testimony to the manner in which its investments have been made. While thus successfully handling its funds, it has been able to earn a higher rate of interest than any other Company, justifying its claim to be the best Company for its policy-holders and proving it worthy of the recommendation of its friends.

The great western country of Canada is acknowledged by all to be the most favorable field for the investment of money provided the investor is experienced and possesses a thorough knowledge of the country. The Great-West Life is fortunate in having on its Board of Directors many of the leading, and most experienced and successful investors of capital in the West.

The fact that the Great-West Life Assurance Co. earns two per cent. more interest on its funds than any other Company doing business in Canada explains why it can, at the same time, charge a lower premium and return to its policy-holders a greater dividend than any of its competitors.

EDMONTON'S SUMMER FAIR.

Edmonton's first summer fair has come and gone and despite a combination of unfortunate and adverse circumstances, the fair was not a failure. The directors played in hard luck. In the preliminary arrangements they were delayed and interfered with by rain. Then, when the rain ceased, and everything was ready for the opening, the strike took place and all trains from Calgary north were cancelled. This was a serious matter to the exhibition as the train was to bring north many fast horses to compete in the speeding events, the baseball, football, lacrosse, and cricket teams, as well as the fire brigade and band from Calgary and the Ponoka baseball team were coming up with many others. All the fruit for the booths at the track was lying at Calgary with no means of transport north which added to the inconvenience. In spite of all this the fair opened with a good attendance. Monday 2,000 paid admission to the grounds. The band marched down at 10 o'clock and the programme of races was put under way. The citizens followed at noon when the business places in the two towns closed, and the grounds presented a lively scene throughout the afternoon. There were many entertainment and refreshment booths upon the ground, as well as wheels of fortune and the time honored "turn the baby and get a cigar." Two dancing bowers among the trees provided amusement for those who were solicitined. The hospitals had booths upon the grounds, and a merry-go-round provided recreation for the juvenile element.

In the exhibition building were the agricultural exhibits on the ground floor. Up stairs were the fancy work, school exhibits and many attractive advertising displays. Crowds filled the exhibition building every day and certainly some of the exhibits were most interesting. As a display of the agricultural possibilities of the district the roots and vegetables were disappointing in quantity. In quality they were excellent. The following were some of the exhibits in these lines, all of this seasons growth.

Sheaf oats, three feet one inch in length, Jas. Tough. Two feet eight inches, Jos. Hastings, Edmonton.

Sheaf wheat, three feet four inches, James MacKeraan, Edmonton; Jos. Hoityn, Edmonton, two feet nine inches.

Sheaf barley, Jas. Rye, Daugh, three feet, all headed out; Jas. Tough, two feet eleven inches.

Brome grass, five feet, Thos. Daly, Strathcona. Another exhibit made by Jas. Tough, Edmonton, also measured five feet.

Wild grasses: Jas. McKernan, Edmonton, four feet eleven inches.

Samples of vetch were shown measuring three feet eleven inches.

Radishes seven inches in length, Mrs. M. Omand, Strathcona.

Onions, Donald Ross, one foot eleven inches in circumference.

Potatoes were shown seven inches long and three inches in diameter.

Rhubarb, Mrs. A. E. Latimer, Strathcona, two feet six inches long.

Cucumbers, seven inches in length, Donald Ross.

The dairy products exhibit was not extensive. The bad roads had prevented many farmers from coming in with their exhibits, in this and in other products of the farm. As will be noticed, the exhibits were made chiefly by those living in the vicinity of town.

On entering the exhibition building the first display noticed on the right hand of the entrance was one of noxious weeds made by weed inspector Jos. Brunelle. This exhibit was most complete, including all the varieties of noxious weeds found in the district, all of the specimens shown were collected by Mr. Brunelle within a radius of three miles of town and being mounted on cards and neatly labeled furnished much valuable information to agriculturists. Mr. Brunelle was present all day and explained fully to all interested the nature and appearance of the various weeds and the best means to be employed in their eradication.

McIntosh & Campbell had an advertising space, neat and attractive. It consists of a thoroughly well furnished bed room.

The Hudson's Bay Co. had two displays, one of canned goods, Tetley's tea and H. B. Co. flour, and the other, up stairs, of carpets, rugs, curtains, etc. Both were most attractively displayed and attracted much attention.

On the ground floor the Gallagher-Hull Co. had probably the finest displayed exhibit in the building. A great quantity of bacon, hams, sausages, lard and cured meats of all descriptions were displayed in a most attractive and enticing form.

The Brackman-Ker Co. had a very complete display of the products of the National Mills.

Vogel & Tomlinson had an exhibit of particularly well cured and cleaned hams and bacon. They took first prize.

The Great West Saddlery Co. had a first class advertising corner. All kinds of waffe and driving harness were shown, with rugs, whips and all the accessories of a well equipped harness store. The central figure of the display was an excellent dummy horse in complete harness.

In horticulture a handsome exhibit was shown, the centre table being a mass of bright color.

Cushing Bros. had a display of the products of their turning and planing mill, doors, windows, sashes and a handsome mantel made at their Edmonton shops.

The Singer Sewing machine company were also exhibitors.

Upstairs Potter & McDougall showed bicycles and garden seeds, two of the specialties of their departmental store.

A cabinet in pocker work was on exhibition, made by John Koch.

Mathers had a handsome exhibit of photographs.

A most interesting exhibit was that of the Galician settlers of Beaver Creek. It advertised the flax industry, and showed the flax in seed, then the straw after being threshed, after one week in the vat, ready to spin, and in its manufactured state. The manufactured goods were remarkably fine and surprisingly pretty.

An exhibit, unexcelled in point of interest, was a collection of curios made by W. H. Hosper. It included sides old and valuable relics of the past, rare specimens of the bead work and black rock carving of the Indians of the present day. Some of the rarest and most valuable transparent bead work of the Navajo and Modoc Indians, stone and bone carving of the Hydas Indians of British Columbia, besides homemade knives of the Eskimo, and needle work of the Ojibway, Crees and Bungass. Some rare old volumns were shown dated as far back as 1773. A curiosity of particular interest is a Franklin medal, one of those given by the Royal Geographical society to members of Arctic exploration parties about 1818. Other curiosities were: An American rifle used in the Mexican war in the time of Santa Anna; a copy of Paradise Lost, dated 1773, and a copy of Paradise Regained, dated 1773; an ancient map of the Roman Empire and a "unique" map of the H. B. Co. reserve, Edmonton; old English-made watches, some 125 years old; another curiosity is a commemorative coin in honor of the capture of Porto Bella in 1738. All these and many others are shown. Probably no other exhibit at the fair attracted more attention that Mr. Hooper's. He also had an advertising exhibit of cigars manufactured by the Havana Cigar Syndicate, of Winnipeg, which was highly commended by the judges.

The second day of the fair was Old Timers' Day and the Old Timers' parade in the morning was one of the features of the fair. At ten o'clock the procession left the immigration hall to the inspiring music of the band and the Indian tom-tom. In the van went the Union Jack and with it Jas. Gibbons, one of the oldest of the Old Timers; Next followed the Edmonton band and after them the band of Indians. The natives were attired in their celebration costume of red and yellow paint, some also wore blankets. There were between two and three hundred of them, on horseback and on foot. Kenneth McDonald carried a buffalo head, decked with ribbons. To the hum of the Indian drum and the keep of the braves they walked in irregular formation. Marshall T. G. Lauder led the Old Timers' who followed in a body after the Indians. An old H. B. Co., swivel gun carried by R. Vance, and an old long barreled musket, relic of the early fur days, led the van. The president of the Old Timers' D. R. Fraser, occupied a post of honor in the old Red River cart drawn by an ancient ox lead by C. Gallagher. In another cart were a number of old timers also drawn by an ox. After the association came the public on foot.

At the grounds many more people were present than on the previous day. The grand stand was filled with a crowd which excitedly cheered the finish of the racing events and rose in their seats to yell when the horses came down the stretch. Old Timers' day was the most interesting day of the fair. But towards evening the rain clouds commenced to come up and the balance of the programme of the afternoon, as well as the evening's bill was called off as the rain commenced to fall in uncomfortable quantities. All night the rain fall continued, soaking the grounds, and bedraggling the bunting that flew so bravely a few hours before.

Wednesday was to be Farmers' Day, but the rain made other arrangements. The downpour continued during the day, not particularly heavy, but quite sufficient to keep things in a cowell soaked condition. It was decided to hold over Wednesday's sports until Friday, in the hope that the weather on Thursday (American's Day) and Friday would be favorable to the holding of the sports.

On Wednesday night the long delayed and long looked for train arrived, bringing mail and passengers. None of the racing horses came in, as the train had been so long delayed in starting from Calgary, and there had been such uncertainty as to the time of its arrival here. The Attraction Company, from Minneapolis, arrived however, but as Thursday was also rainy as the day preceding, a celebration of the glorious fourth had to be indefinately postponed. The train also brought the Ponoka baseball team who had come up to play a match with the northern teams for the championship cup. This game was likewise blocked by the weather, and Americans' Day passed off quietly, the only disturbances being the occasional discharge of an old brass cannon borrowed from the Hudson's Bay Company, or the exploding of some sticks of dynamite. Five sticks of this explosive were set off at seven o'clock Thursday morning on the market square creating a most terrific din.

The following are the prize winners in the different classes exhibited:

EDMONTON BULLETIN JULY, 5TH. 1901

FATHER SINNETT ON THE WAR.

In Robertson Hall last Sunday night Father Sinnett, chaplain of the Canadian Mounted Rifles in their campaign in South Africa, gave his lecture on the war. The lecture was from the view point of the private soldier, for, though chaplains in time of war have the rank of captain and Father Sinnett for a year was "Captain Sinnett", he spoke as a private in the ranks telling only of what he saw and heard with the eyes and ears of a colonial civilian soldier. The political phase of the war was not touched on, the reverend lecturer explaining that he would confine himself to the campaign itself.

Father Sinnett was introduced by C. Gallagher and with them on the platform was Rev. Father Leduc. When the reverend father came forward, dressed in the plain khaki uniform of the C. M. R., with his cowboy hat in his hand, looking more soldier-like than clerical, he was received with applause. Father Sinnett has a striking figure, tall, with clear-cut features and a strong though kindly face. He speaks in a slow, distinct and very easy manner, and like his personality, his speaking is forceful claiming and holding the attention of his hearers. As one listened to his clear, penetrating voice, to the hardships and horrors he told of, one forgot that he was a priest, a man in holy orders, and looked upon him only as a soldier, and one who had gone through the horrors of war. In the beginning he spoke of the country through which the troops marched and the war was waged. South Africa was an old fighting country. Cape Colony was a hundred years old and had been a fighting ground since its infancy. The country was very much in favor of the Boers. Nature had also helped them in the different elements there. He told of the Boer manner of fighting. How the hills, or kopjes, were from 200 to 400 feet high and covered with scrub and rocks. How range after range of these kopjes covered the country. These hills are occupied by the Boers. They take position among the trees and stones, themselves unseen, and deal death to others. When driven from his position the Boer simply retires to another point of vantage. "After a month of this," said Father Sinnett, "I have known them to be back at their original kopje." Then there are other elements in favor of the Boers. In South Africa it scarcely ever rains. When it rains it simply comes down. We had one shower when we were there and that lasted four days, night and day. The Boer gets his water supply by building a long, semi-circular wall at the foot of a long slope. When the water runs down the slope it is caught in this dam. This is the water supply and as you may well understand it is a most unhealthy supply. Often when the soldiers, mad with thirst, would drink from these tepid and putrid pools, carcasses of horses and cattle would be floating in the water. Another difficulty is the wood. After leaving Cape Town the country is a desert, that is through Cape Colony. The Boers live on sheep, goats and ostriches. The ordinary farmer will have 3,000 to 5,000 sheep. As it requires seven acres of land to feed one sheep you can have an idea of the immense tract of country which each Boer has as a farm. The ostriches are worth $300 a pair and there is a law prohibiting their sale or exportation. After crossing the Orange river the country improves.

Speaking of the Boer and his fighting qualities, the reverend speaker said: "The fighting they are doing to day is only what they have been doing for the last 100 years, the only difference is that to day fighting is continuous while in the past it had been intermittent." The Boer fights as he hunts. For days, if necessary he will wait at a certain spot for the game to pass and when it appears he shoots, and thanks to kill.

"The Boer," said Father Sinnett, "is a brave man and a good soldier. What is a good soldier? "A man who can kill and the Boer can kill." The reverend speaker had an intense admiration for the shooting qualities of the Boer. When a Boer has a Mauser and is ready to shoot "I would not take the city of Edmonton and stand two and a half miles away," he said. When the enemy is discovered and the Mausers begin to shoot every man looks for cover and hill ops stone, it would be madness to do otherwise. Then the big guns commence to shoot, and when the Boers run our men get their opportunity.

The reverend speaker made a comparison of the two armies, Boer and British. Tommy Atkins he described as a fighter from "away back" and a first class machine; "Tell him what he has to do, tell him that a kopje has to be taken, and he'll take it—or die." If the Canadians were told to take a kopje they would think out the best way of getting there, of killing the other fellow without getting killed themselves. They might go a long way around to do it—but they'd get there all the same. As scrappers they were number one, they knew their duty and did it well.

He spoke of a soldier's life on the field, with a blanket for a bed and heaven for a roof. Of the stirring sight it was to see 10,000 men standing beside their horses ready for the word to mount. Not a word would be spoken, not a man move. Then would come the word "mount" and as one man the 10,000 would rise to their saddles, ready for the word to march. All was perfect order. Then on the march they would make four miles an hour or twenty miles a day. Longer distances could have been covered had it not been that the troops had to wait for the transport. As to the Boer army; there is no order, no discipline. He is a natural born fighter, and he fights just how we wants to. When he gets tired fighting he gallops off has a smoke and then comes back again.

He spoke of the delights of a menu of hard tack and tully beef, both of which were good wholesome food. Of all the little parcels which were sent out to the soldiers by friends in Canada, cake, cigars, cigarettes and anything else, he could assure his hearers that not one ever reached its destination. It could not. It would require special trains to do nothing else than carry these parcels to the men at the front, there were so many. There were not trains enough to carry food. The horses had to live on oats, practically. The horses from the west had better bottom, better staying power, than any horses procured in South Africa. He drew a pitiful picture of the hardships and suffering endured by the horses in the army.

Speaking of engines of destruction, the speaker showed a few of the curiosities he brought from South Africa. He showed Mauser bullets and pompom and 12lb. shells. He told the story of his own experiences at the battle of Diamond Hill. A shell lit on his right thirty yards away, then another fell on his left, then one behind and one went over his head and struck in front. None exploded, else he would not have been speaking tonight. Was he frightened? Yes, he was thoroughly frightened, but there was no place to go so he had to stay still. He also believed that every soldier who went into battle was frightened when the shells and bullets commenced to fly over him—but when the order came to stand, the soldier would stand. There was a difference between being frightened and being a coward.

The reverend father told of the demoralizing effect of a night attack, accompanied by shell fire. He spoke of the work done by the shells. The first man he saw killed of the C. M. R. was cut completely in two with a shell, and the upper part of his body was never found. He told of the first man he had buried in the grey dawn of the early morning with the enemy resuming their fire from the kopjes a mile away. He drew a graphic picture of the horrors of war.

Afterwards a number of views were thrown upon the screen by the aid of a magic lantern. The lantern was insufficient and many of the pictures showed but indistinctly, some quite unrecognizable. A number of the views were taken by the reverend father himself on the field. A photo was shown of Lieut. Chalmers' grave, and also a photo of Chalmers taken after death. The latter was very distinct and the features were easily recognizable.

The lecture and magic lantern exhibits concluded at 11.30.

ROAD SURVEYS.

The report of the Northwest department of agriculture for 1900 contains the following references to the necessity and difficulty of opening up special road allowances:

In previous departmental reports attention was directed to the idea, then prevalent in many quarters, that roads could be opened by the department without a survey being first made. The erroneous idea has now been largely corrected, but the correction has resulted in a flood of applications for surveys which will certainly keep the surveys branch busily employed for some time. The experience gained in dealing with the matter of the survey of roads since the organization of the department clearly indicates that the arbitrary road allowance system of the Dominion lands system of survey is quite unsuited to the existing topographical conditions in the northern and foothill portions of the Territories and that those districts would have been much better served by deferring the location of the roads until after the subdivision surveys were completed, having, in the subdivision of townships, made provision for the taking of such area as might be needed for highways to be laid out where they were feasible for travel and would best serve the public needs. In many townships in the districts mentioned the greater part, if not all, the road allowances provided under the Dominion lands system of survey are found to be entirely useless for public use owing to the natural obstructions, and we are not only called upon to provide suitable roads, but have to deal with the question of closing up the useless road allowances.

In opening new roads the question of the title to the right of way therefor across each quarter section intersected has to be dealt with separately. As some of our surveys cross many hundred quarter sections the mass of work entailed in securing the right of way will be realized. When the title to the right of way is required across even numbered sections which are still owned by the crown, we arrange with the department of the interior for a reservation of the area required for the road, but in the case of lands belonging to private individuals or to railways companies, the Hudson's Bay Company, or any of the other corporations owning land, we have to make arrangements for the purchase of the right of way in each case, and in many instances pay a considerable sum for the land required.

At the present time we have at least two thousand cases of title to right of way in process of settlement, and, judging from past experience, the cost of acquiring the title to land involved in these cases will reach the large sum of $50,000. This sum seems startling, but is based on the allowance of $25 for each case, and that estimate is not excessive if we are to be guided by past experience.

In dealing with this matter the fact that the land for roads and other public works is wanted by the government seems to be thought sufficient justification, in many instances, for most unreasonable demands in the way of compensation, and many cases have occurred where it has been found necessary to throw upon the owners of the land affected the onus of the settlement of the question of the compensation to be paid by reference to a judge of the supreme court as provided by the expropriation ordinance, the road in the meantime being established as a public highway by deposit of the plan in the registry office.

Many of the claims filed for compensation are based upon the cost of extra fencing, involved, or the fact that roads as surveyed cut off a portion of the quarter sections crossed from a water front, and in these cases considerable difficulty is experienced in fixing the figure which should be paid for the land taken, because in all these cases the quarter section affected derives more or less benefit from the opening up of the road.

In the foregoing remarks reference has only been made to the right of way required for roads, but those remarks apply with equal force to the many cases in which it is found necessary to take land for dams and reservoirs created thereby, for drains and ditches, public wells or any other class of public works, and the unreasonable demands made in the cases of many dams from the owners of lands most benefitted, would of themselves be sufficient justification for the enactment of somewhat drastic laws dealing with this subject.

As bearing upon this question of right of way it is necessary to explain, in view of some of the criticisms to which the department has been subjected, that many four most troublesome cases were inherited by the department from the old district system in force before the organization of the department, under which the local member had surveys made, entered into agreements with land owners and generally conducted the whole business connected with the acquirement of title. The trouble in these cases has been caused by the fact that the member failed to file his plans, agreements and other papers connected with these transactions in the lieutenant governor's office, or anywhere else where we have been able to find them, and we are confronted with all kinds of claims based upon these missing plans and agreements which it is impossible now to deal with intelligently or promptly.

Many of the more important roads surveyed last year, and many of those which we are asked to survey, may properly be termed colonization roads, as they are required to give access, from the newly nettled districts springing up all over the Territories, to market centres. In considering the location of these roads the question of the changed conditions which will arise from the extension of railway lines through these new districts must be borne in mind, as it is evident that, in many sections where long distances are now travelled east and west to existing railway lines, short north and south roads will be needed in the near future to reach main points on the new railway lines which are rapidly being extended to the west.

In the meantime, however, we are forced to open the longer roads and proceed with these improvements, although it seems quite certain that in a comparatively short time these roads will be very little used as main highways.

MOUNTED RIFLES CAMPAIGN.

The following is an extract from Col. Evans' report of the operations of the C. M. R. in South Africa; appearing in the blue book recently issued by the Canadian government:

Carnarvon Field Force.

On March 8 and 9, 1900, the battalion proceeded by rail to Victoria West Road, and by route march to Carnarvon where it became a portion of the Carnarvon field force, organized under Col. Sir Chas. Parsons, for the purpose of making a demonstration through the rebellious portion of Northern Cape Colony. This expedition involved the most difficult marching of the campaign, chiefly through the Karoo desert country, and was a severe test of the spirits and physique of both men and horses. For a large portion of this period the daily forage ration consisted of 1 sheaf of oat straw, (about 2 1-2 lbs.) and 8 lbs. whole wheat (musty) and this, together with the debilitated condition of the horses after the long sea voyage, was the cause of heavy mortality. Continuous and heavy rains also added to the discomfort of men and horses. The N. C. O's. and men stood this very severe physical test most successfully.

The battalion reached DeAar on April 14, having marched 700 miles during the previous month under conditions of food, forage, roads, and weather, far more severe than any subsequently met with during the campaign.

Lieut.-Col. Herchmer was invalided on March 20, Major Howe taking over command of the battalion. The battalion proceeded from DeAar by rail to Norval's Pont, and by route march to Bloemfontein, which was reached April 29.

General Advance.

"C" squadron and headquarters staff marched into Bloemfontein on April 29, and was embodied in the 1st M. I. corps of the 1st mounted infantry brigade, under command of Maj.-Gen. Hutton. "D" squadron joined the brigade on the 4th.

The command of the battalion (now complete) was taken over by Lieut.-Col. Evans on May 5.

During the advance from Bloemfontein to Kroonstadt the battalion took a leading part in the following engagements; Brandfort, Constantia Siding, Vett river, Zand River (May 7), Zand river (May 10). The most notable regimental feature of this advance was the night march made by a squadron composed of 2 troops each from "C" and "D" squadrons, under Capt. A. C. Macdonell. This squadron, after a hard day's fighting, and 75 hours in the saddle, marched at 8:30 p. m. through the enemy's lines and blew up an important culvert near Smaldeel Junction, rejoining the brigade safely the following morning. This incident was mentioned in despatches. The brigade rested at Kroonstadt from May 12 to 20, during which period Lieut. Chalmers, with 50 men, took part in Col. Alderson's night ride to Rothaville, when several important prisoners were captured. The general advance was continued on the 20th, General Hutton's brigade acting in conjunction with French's column on the left flank of the whole line. During the advance from Kroonstadt to Pretoria, the battalion took part in the two days severe fighting at Klipriversberg, near Johannesburg, on May 28 and 29, and the fight at Crocodile river, near Pretoria, on June 3. For its work on May 29 in covering the withdrawal of the 1st M. I. brigade while General French was making his turning movement, the battalion was specially complimented by Gen. Hutton before the whole brigade. The brigade marched through Pretoria on the 6th inst., and after 2 days rest continued the advance on the 9th, taking part in the two days hard fighting at Diamond Hills, in which battles both squadrons were under a severe and continuous shell and rifle fire for 10 hours each day, but the cover being good the casualties were very light, consisting of 1 killed and 3 wounded. The severe wound sustained by Capt. Macdonell deprived the battalion for the remainder of the campaign of the services of one of its most capable and efficient officer.

The brigade returned to Pretoria on the 14th June, and on the evening of that day, at the request of the commander-in-chief, the battalion was detailed for duty on the lines of communication between Vereeniging and Kroonstadt, which at that time were being threatened by General DeWet.

Lines of Communication.

The battalion was on the lines of communication between Vereeniging and Kroonstadt, including the march back to Pretoria, from the 15th June to the 15th July, being broken up into detachments, stationed at the most vulnerable points of the line. The most notable incident of this period occurred during DeWet's attack on Rietbosch near Honing Spruit, where, with 1,000 men and several guns, he unsuccessfully attacked 2 companies Shropshire Regiment, and 50 men of my battalion under command of Lieut. Davidson. The gallant stand made against 50 of the enemy by a group of 4 men, consisting of Corp. Morden, Corp. Miles and Privates Kerr and Miles, was the subject of a special report by me which was published in Canadian general orders. This act of steadfast courage, while costing the battalion the lives of two of its best and bravest men, will always be remembered with pride in the battalion.

At other points along the line excellent work was done by the different detachments, Lieut. Chalmers and Corp. Callaghan being specially commended by General Smith-Dorrien for smart and aggressive scouting.

During the month the battalion marched some 500 miles, and establish[ed] a good record among the various regiments with whom it come in contact. In Lieutenant Inglis, who was wounded at Honing Spruit, I lost the services of another very capable officer.

The battalion reached Irene, near Pretoria, on the 12th July, and after securing badly needed remounts and clothing, marched on the 15th July to Rietvlei, where it rejoined the brigade.

The Advance on Middleburg.

The battalion took part in the engagement at Witpoort on the 16th July, and marched with the general advance towards Middleburg, on the 23rd, coming in contact with the enemy's rear guard on that day, and the 24th, and entering Middleburg on the 27th [illegible]

Lines of Communication.

From the 27th July to the 22nd November the battalion was broken up into detachments, divided between Middleburg and Belfast, always in touch with large and aggressive numbers of the enemy, and performing outpost duties of an arduous and harrassing nature. Out of numerous minor engagements and operations during this period, the following 3 were most important; The night attack made on 5th Sept. by Durkson's commando with 2 guns, on Nooitgedacht, which was held by a detachment of 100 men of the battalion, Major Sanders in command. This attack of a most determined character made at daybreak, was beaten off in a most creditable manner before outside assistance arrived.

This fight was mentioned in despatches by the commander-in-chief. Two officers, Major Sanders and Lieut. Moodie, were slightly, and No. 109 Private D. F. Johnstone severely wounded. I forwarded the following names to the G. O. C., for good work performed in this fight; Major Sanders (in command) 150 Pte. D. F. Johnstone, 128 Pte. J. Geoghegan, and 235 Pte. R. J. Northway.

The engagement at Belfast on the 2nd November was an occurrence which brought out the best fighting qualities of the battalion. The advanced guard of the column was composed of 50 N. C. O's. and men under Major Sanders, the advanced party being under Lieut. Chalmers. The advanced party was attacked by the enemy in large numbers, and Lieut. Chalmers was killed while taking steps to bring in Major Sanders who was wounded, and while in the very act of warning an orderly to dismount at a dangerous point. Lieut. Chalmers was peculiarly qualified for active service, cool, cautious and daring, and his death in so gallant a manner was keenly felt by all ranks. This incident was the subject of a special report from me, and was mentioned in despatches by the G. O. C. For plucky work on this occasion I submitted the following names to the G. O. C.: Major Sanders, Sergt. Tryon, Corporals Herchmer and Eaton and Ptes. G. R. Smith and Hutchinson.

In the engagements at Komati river on the 6th November the Belfast detachment took a leading part, and the work performed by it was mentioned in despatches.

During the final three months of service, the battalion headquarters scouts, the principal ones being Corporal T. Callaghan, Ptes. J. Davis, Leggatt and Harris, made an excellent record for clever and useful work, and all ranks developed a capacity for fighting the Boers with Boer tactics, and were more than equal to the enemy at his own game.

The battalion concentrated at Pretoria on December 3, and entrained for Cape Town on Dec. 3, arriving at Modderland Camp on the 11th and embarking for Canada on Dec. 13.

WHEAT IN MANITOBA.

Commercial, June 8: The primary cause of the advance was the extremely warm weather and want of rain over the Northwest spring wheat country making it to be feared that we might have a repetition to some extent of the great drouth of last year. Fortunately the weather experienced during the current week has dispersed all fears on this account, for fine rains began about Sunday to visit different localities, and by Wednesday and Thursday there was a general rain and snowfall over the Northwest, which practically assures the spring wheat crop for this year. Snow in June sounds rather inconsistent with good crop prospects, especially when there if frost along with it, but it is not likely to hurt the spring wheat crop at the present stage, in fact the weather of this week is looked upon as decidedly beneficial for the Northwest.

Summary.

During the nine months in which the battalion was in active work, it took part in fifteen general engagements.

In addition to the actions above recorded, the battalion was occupied for three months in performing outpost duties involving daily sniping and almost daily attacks on our advanced posts and patrols by the enemy, and by us on the enemy's posts. Raiding on the enemy's cattle and to secure prisoners both by day and night also deserve mention.

The distance marched by the battalion was about 2,600 miles, and the total casualties in the field were five killed, twenty-two wounded, and sixteen missing. With the exception of Private G. J. Weaver, who is supposed to be killed, all the missing subsequently rejoined.

In view of the work performed by the battalion, the casualties were extremely light.

Health.

The health of the battalion during the campaign, while comparing favorably with other regiments, still shows a heavy percentage of all ranks rendered inefficient by sickness.

Seventy officers, N. C. O's and men were invalided to England, and after Pretoria was taken, about 200 effectives were with the battalion out of a strength of 371, still, the battalion was by far the strongest in proportion to its establishment, in the brigade.

A very annoying feature was the fact that once a man had been sent back to the field hospital sick, his battalion appeared to lose track of him for several months, and in numerous cases until the corps was en route home. No facilities were offered him to return to his regiment, and he was detained at rest camps, or offered employment in various civil branches of the service without any reference to, or permission from, his commanding officer.

Enteric fever and dysentry were the most numerous and fatal diseases prevailing. When the battalion was on the march, and at its hardest work the sick were few, but when halted in camp for any length of time, the sick list, notwithstanding all possible sanitary precautions, increased daily. The total deaths by disease during the campaign were seven.

Discipline.

The discipline of the battalion was, on the whole, excellent. The conditions were peculiar, as about three-fifths of the battalion is composed of civilians, accustomed to the freedom of life on the plains of the Northwest. The ready manner in which they adapted themselves to the regulations of the service was most creditable. In event of a future campaign, it would add greatly to the value of this excellent material if in peace time it was organized as militia. When troops are called out for active service, very little time is available for instruction in discipline, use and care of arms, &c., which might have been previously given at home.

Canadian Horses.

If the horses of the battalion had been given a fighting chance, they would have made a splendid record, but the exigencies of the situation did not give them an opportunity to recuperate after the long voyage, and in poor condition they faced the expedition through the Karoo desert country, the severest work of the campaign. Notwithstanding these drawbacks and the continual shortage of forage and water during the rest of the campaign, nearly fifty per cent reached Pretoria. When the battalion was about to return home 33 of the original horses were on the strength; 1122 had been turned over to rest and remount depots on the line of march, the majority of which were re-issued to other corps; 177 had been abandoned on the line of march; exhausted; 7 had been exchanged for native horses; 24 had been killed in action, or died on duty, and 13 died at sea (9 on ss. Pomeranian, 3 on ss. Milwaukee and 1 on ss. Laurentian.)

The above details account for 376 horses brought out with the battalion. Had the horses been given a month's rest at Cape Town, I am convinced that, at least, 75 per cent would have been with the battalion at the end of its service.

WHAT THE STRIKERS ASK.

Following is the schedule of wages for the western division submitted some time since to the C. P. R. officials by the grievance committee of the trackmen's brotherhood. The company refused to grant these concessions together with those demanded for the men on other divisions; hence the strike:

(a) Yard foreman at terminal or divisional points shall be paid $70 per month.

(b) Extra gang foreman shall be paid $80 per month.

NOTES.

On Old Timers' day Wm. Vogel's bear was one of the principal attractions. It wandered pretty much at will around the centre of the track and performed gymnastic evolutions for the edification of the spectators.

Piper Dewer, a brawny Scot, in kilts, paraded the grounds throughout the two days giving selections on the pipes to the delight of all true sons of Scotland. He is an exceptionally fine piper.

On Wednesday evening one of the dancing bower proprietors, finding the grounds somewhat deserted, rented Robertson Hall and moved up town.

In the half mile pony race on Farmers' Day Henry Round, who was riding one of the racers, received a nasty throw through his mount attempting to bolt the track and jump the fence. The horse stuck on the fence for a moment, with one foot over, and the rider was thrown to the other side, luckily, escaping with a nasty shake up.

The band, seventeen strong, under bandmaster Hockley, played each day and added not a little life to the proceedings.

BASEBALL AT THE FAIR.

The baseball match on Citizen's day was the first of the athletic games. It was between the Strathcona and Edmonton teams, owing to the non-materialization of the Northern Stars who were to play Strathcona at 10 a. m. The Strathcona-Edmonton game took place at 2 in the afternoon, after a slight sun shower had laid the dust. This was the first match played on the new grounds which were found to be in better condition for ball playing than had been expected. The line-up of the teams was:

Edmonton.		Strathcona.
W. Ball,	c.	Jackson,
F. Ball,	p.	W. Steeves,
Sanson,	1st b.	J. Smith,
Wilson,	2nd b.;	Worth,
Inglis,	3rd b.	McMillan,
W. Ball,	s. s.	A. Buckle,
Till,	l. f.	Blain,
Huber,	r. f.	Grabowski,
Thom,	c. f.	D. Buckle,

Lou Samis was umpire.

The game was a victory for Edmonton by the surprising score of 10 to 1. It was a first class exhibition of baseball in which the Strathcona team did not play its usual game and Edmonton never played better. Throughout the entire game there were only three errors made by Edmonton, two muffs, one in the in and one on the out field, and one overthrow to 2nd base. Strathcona had nine errors, all muffs. The batteries of both teams did effective work. The score by innings was:

Strathcona, 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0—1

Edmonton, 1 1 4 0 0 3 1 0 0—10

The Strathcona's played an uphill, gentlemanly game.

The Ball brothers as a battery worked well together and played a first class game. The pitching of Frank Ball was most puzzling to the opposition batters.

A TRAIN AGAIN.

After twelve days interrupted communication, during which time no train or mail reached Edmonton, the service was resumed Wednesday when three trains arrived at the depot. The first, a work train, reached Strathcona at seven o'clock and was followed shortly after by a passenger and mail train. Another train with passengers and freight reached the depot about midnight. The mail train brought the biggest mail that ever reached Edmonton. There were half a box cars of papers alone, and it took five clerks four hours to distribute the letters.

The train which arrived Wednesday left Calgary Tuesday noon with about 100 passengers on board. In the midst of a heavy rain it reached Innisfail at 7 at night, Innisfail, according to the description of some of the passengers, was in a very damp state. The train remained at Innisfail all night, leaving in the morning, following the work train. The worst damage to the track was at Red Deer where it was necessary to build a loop for about 150 yards around a portion of the washed out track. A good sized storm was passing over the place where the track had been. At Red Deer the train was lightened considerably and half of it was cut off and taken back to Calgary.

Yesterday morning the train returned south from Strathcona. A report in town had it that the train had to return to Strathcona. This was found to be one of the falsehoods on which the town has been feeding for the past two weeks.

EX-N. W. M. P.

A meeting of ex-members of the N. W. M. P., was held in Hourston's hall on Tuesday to organize a post in connection with an organization of Ex-N. W. M. P. men now being formed in the Territories. The attendance being small the meeting adjourned to Thursday evening when a considerable number of ex-members of the force were present. Officers were elected pro. tem as follows;

Post Commander, Fred Tetu.

Second in Command, A. Davidson.

Adjt., G. H. L. Bossange.

A discussion was then held as to the most suitable form of constitution for the order and arrangements made to send delegates to the general meeting in Calgary on the 12th inst., to draft a constitution and do the other final work of starting the organization.

This movement is now under way throughout the Territories. The plan is to have a post formed at each N. W. M. P. post and headquarters at some central point, probably Calgary. If successful this will keep in association of at least 1,000 drilled men and in event of contingencies would place a large body of superior troops at the disposal of the country. It is believed there are fifty-five or sixty ex-members of the force in this district and all such interested in the organization movement should communicate with G. H. L. Bossange, Edmonton.
